Peter Fribbins

*Right: Excerpt from the 1st movement of the new
Fribbins Piano Concerto*

A CONCERT featuring Beethoven's famous Egmont overture – composed for Goethe's play of the same name – his joyous Eighth symphony of 1812, and not one but two piano concertos. Shostakovich's entertaining first concerto from the 1930s is preceded by the eagerly awaited premiere of the Piano Concerto by British composer Peter Fribbins, well known for his dramatic and memorably melodic musical style. The piano soloist is the young Croatian-German rising star Diana Brekalo – joined by trumpeter Angela Whelan in the Shostakovich – and the concert is conducted by the highly respected conductor of the Lithuanian National Opera and National Symphony Orchestra, Maestro Robertas Šervenikas.

Promoted by Music Haven London under the auspices of the United Kingdom Embassy of the Republic of Croatia and with the support of Middlesex University.
